

Mark Hogg

Founder and CEO

Mark Hogg is founder and CEO of WaterStep, a Louisville-based non-profit organization that designs and manufactures cutting-edge equipment to bring safe water to the world. Since its humble beginnings as a small service organization, WaterStep has evolved into a global leader in safe water solutions and innovation. Under Mark's leadership, the organization has completed more than 5,000 projects in 72 countries and has positively impacted more than 15 million people. Mark has a BBA in Business Management from Belmont University in Nashville, Tenn., and an MDiv from Southern Seminary in Louisville, Ky. He also founded and owned Hogg Contracting, a remodeling company, from 1986 to 1991. Mark is an experienced motivational speaker, drawing on his background as an ordained minister and more than 30 years of international travel. His extensive time in the field has uniquely positioned Mark to be an inspirational advocate for global safe water, sanitation, and hygiene issues, and “the power of one” to make a difference in the world.
